FALLEN EMPIRES

Bombas: the Shark Tank deal sheet

Facts only, from public sources. Not investment advice.

The deal

| | |

|---|---|

| Founders | David Heath and Randy Goldberg |

| Shark Tank | Season 6, 2014 |

| The ask | $200,000 for 5% (a $4 million valuation) |

| The deal | $200,000 for 17.5% from Daymond John (about a $1.14 million valuation) |

| Sharks who passed | Kevin O'Leary, Robert Herjavec, Lori Greiner, Mark Cuban |

Before and after

- Feb 2011: Heath reads that socks are the most requested clothing item in homeless shelters.
- Aug 2013: Indiegogo campaign; about $145,000 raised.
- 2014: about $1 million from friends, family and angels.
- 2018: revenue passes $100 million.
- 2023: lifetime sales over $1 billion; over 100 million items donated to 3,500+ organizations.
- Oct 2025: first physical store opens in New York City.

3 things the company did

1. Proved demand (crowdfunding) before pitching.

2. Kept one clear mission: one for one.
3. Stayed focused on socks, as its investor advised.

2 mistakes it avoided

1. Chasing many products at once.
2. Letting the mission replace product quality.

Glossary

- Equity: a slice of ownership of a company.
- Valuation: the price of the whole company (money invested ÷ share received).
- Margin: the share of each sale you keep after the cost of the product.
- Due diligence: the investor's line-by-line check of the books and claims before a deal closes.

Sources

- Wikipedia, Bombas: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bombas
- Entrepreneur (Oct 2023): https://www.entrepreneur.com/starting-a-business/bombas-is-the-most-successful-shark-tank-brand-heres/464309
- Shark Tank Blog: https://www.sharktankblog.com/business/bombas
- Looper: https://looper.com/1233375/this-is-the-best-selling-product-to-come-out-of-a-shark-tank-deal-so-far

Bombas is private: revenue is not profit and sales are not valuation.

Free guide from Fallen Empires. Information only, not financial, legal or medical advice.